

BUY COAL NOW, DEALERS' ADVICE

May Be Shortage Later, Owing to Greatly Increased Demand for Fuel.

LITTLE COMING TO CITY

CARS IN USE HAULING BEET CROP.

Coal dealers are urging their patrons to buy coal in advance of the heavy demand that will be inaugurated by the advent of the first cold snap in order that they may be fortified against a temporary shortage of fuel when it is most needed.

It is being pointed out that not more than 15,000 tons of fuel have been stored in advance of the demand, as a result of the application of the storage rate during the summer months.

The average consumption of coal during the cold weather in Salt Lake is 10,000 tons per month. Thus there is a supply of coal sufficient to last nearly six weeks, in the event conditions should arise that would prevent the importation of fuel from the mines.

The remarkable development of the district including an tributary to Salt Lake during the last year, will cause an increase in the demand for fuel this winter. While dealers have endeavored to prepare for this increased demand, they will experience some difficulty in filling orders when the rush begins.

This difficulty will be caused by the shortage of men and teams required for delivery. The advice of the dealers is to figure out your coal needs and order fully two weeks in advance of the actual need. By doing this the dealers will be greatly helped and no hardship will be worked on the consumer.

Little Coal Coming in.

But little coal is being brought to the market at this time, owing to the shortage of cars. Many cars that would be devoted to the coal business are now engaged in hauling beets from the fields to the sugar factories. These cars will not be released to the coal dealers for perhaps thirty days, and until they are released the dealers will be able to receive but little fuel.

While it is not anticipated that there will be a coal famine, it is known that under present conditions there will be no surplus of fuel in the market. Conditions will not be nearly so bad as they were last winter when the great shortage was experienced, as the dealers have profited by the hardships that were suffered and have endeavored to fortify themselves against a repetition of that condition.

Not a great deal of the product is moving at this time from the Wyoming mines, though the Utah mines are prepared to ship heavily as soon as cars can be secured.

UNITE FOR PROTECTION.

Opticians to Ask Next Legislature for Needed Legislation.

The Utah Association of Optometrists, which was organized recently, will hold a business meeting Oct. 4 for the purpose of discussing the clauses of the proposed bill, which the association intends to present to the legislature at the coming session.

The purpose of the bill which will be presented is to draw the lines more closely between the opticians of the city and to eliminate as far as practicable all false and unreliable transients from the practice of optometry.

The members of the association desire that a state board shall be appointed to pass on the qualifications of opticians who desire to engage in business in Utah. They contend that opticians who have graduated from responsible and reliable optical colleges should be encouraged and should be protected.

A certificate of membership in the new association is to be made by the holder of the ability of the holder, as according to the rules governing admission, an active member must be an optician of good reputation and adult age, who has acquired a knowledge of optics sufficient to correct all errors of refraction, and who has been engaged in the optical business not less than two years, or not less than one year if the applicant is a graduate of a reputable optical college.

CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS.

Mining Supply Company's Employee
Fishes Marked Coins.

Marked coins proved the undoing of R. J. Smith, arrested yesterday by Detective Wheeler on a petty larceny charge. Smith was an employee of the Utah Mining Machinery & Supply company in the Commercial club building. Several of the other employees of that company had missed small amounts of money from their coats which were left in the wardrobe.

Smith had been suspected of being responsible for the petty larceny, but positive proof was lacking. Finally they decided to mark coins and leave them in their pockets where the thief could easily find them. The coins were taken and Smith was searched. The incriminating evidence was found on him and his arrest followed.

FRESHMEN WIN UNIVERSITY FLAG RUSH.

Scene While Scrimmage Was Liveliest.

The third annual flag rush at the University of Utah, between the freshmen and the sophomores, was won by the freshmen, who scored 50 points to the sophomores' 30. The struggle was held yesterday at 12:30 p. m. on Cummings field. There was only one injury of any importance that occurred during the rush. Walter Andrews, a sophomore, had his arm pulled out of its socket. The accident is not serious, and Andrews had his arm out of the sling yesterday.

The sophomores made their appearance on the field first, and were immediately followed by the freshmen, who came on in lockstep. The two classes were lined up on opposite sides of the field fifty feet from the flag. The flag was held by Gardner, Hennessey and Sharnan for the sophomores, and by Groesbeck, Tracy and Thurston for the freshmen.

Immediately after the blowing of the referee's whistle the two sides charged for the flag. From then on the struggle waged, each man fighting to get his hand on the flag or to pull one of his adversaries off. As men were pulled off they were taken away from the bunch and held while those around the flag still fought. After eight minutes had passed the referee blew the two-minute whistle, which indicated two more minutes of play. At this instance the freshmen reserve force of twelve of their largest men came into the battle and the struggle turned in favor of the freshmen.

After the two minutes were up the referee blew his whistle for the finish, and all men who did not have their hand on the flag withdrew. Then the officials began to count the points for each side. This was a difficult task, as the men were piled on in every manner imaginable. After five minutes of work the men who had their hands on the flag were counted, one for every hand on the flag.

Aside from the general mix-up around the flag there were several interesting fights going on outside. Shogi Irino, a young Jap, who belonged to the freshman class, did some excellent work and had quite a lively struggle with Andrews, one of his opponents. At the finish of the rush he had two hands on the flag. Niel Judd, a freshman, and Carlson, a sophomore, had a lively mix-up which amused the spectators. The sophomores, however, disappeared in some unknown manner disappeared, and the freshmen kept a look for their trophy all day, but were unable to find it.

Groesbeck, Manning, Roberts, Blackner, Irino, Ganzel, Brown, Thurston, Alley, Dalton, Johnson, Herman, Argill, Taylor, Latimer, Olsen, Tracy, Hagen, Tibbs, Lewis, Cummings, Jensen, Keep, Blake, Lowe, Stoddard and Brinton.

For the sophomores the men were Monahan, Gardner, Hilliard, Cannon, Hennessey, Jessiman, Young, Packard, Beveridge, C. Cannon, Woolf, Needham and Parsons. Most of the sophomores had two hands on the flag and all of the freshmen finished holding it.

The sides were evenly matched. The freshmen outnumbering the sophomores, but the sophomores having the larger men. The officials for the rush were: Seniors—Bennion, Richards, Hills; Juniors—Russell, Snow and Hatch.

Immediately after the match the flag was returned to the freshmen, and the freshmen kept a look for their trophy all day, but were unable to find it.

Those who finished with their hands on the flag for the freshmen were

James Sternsford, a Denver youth, had an exciting experience yesterday morning. Mr. Sternsford is spending a few days in the city, "taking in the sights."

He arrived Thursday. On the train he made the acquaintance of an Omaha young woman, whose name, he says, is Grace Norton, on her way to Los Angeles. She decided to stop over a day in Salt Lake, and yesterday morning Mr. Sternsford, actuated by a desire to do the right thing, started to go to the train to see her off.

At Fort Douglas. When about half way, they became frightened and ran away, spilling the young couple into the road. Miss Norton rolled down a steep declivity and was caught in a tangle of brush, and the two drove back to town. Miss Norton took the first train for the west, and Mr. Sternsford is thinking of going back to Denver.

While the judges, W. W. Barton, Mrs. Ethel Lane and J. Street, were out, Mrs. W. A. Wright, who won the silver medal in the matrons' contests recently, recited "Jacob on American Women." This was the selection which won her the award.

Music and solos were rendered during the evening. Hattie Foster sang "A Red, Red Rose" and Clara Fafek "Dearie."

When the judges were in their decision, Mrs. E. E. Shepard, who presided over the meeting, presented the medal won by Miss McCanné with a short and appropriate speech. This contest was open to all churches in Salt Lake.

HACKDRIVER STRIKES HIM.

Wilson Hotel Proprietor Knocked Through Window.

A. Fred Wey, proprietor of the Wilson hotel, was knocked through the glass window in the door at the entrance to the Wilson last night shortly before midnight by Robert S. Webb, a hackman. Both of Wey's hands were lacerated by the broken glass. Webb was arrested, charged with assault and battery. George L. Miller, another hack driver, was also locked up after the altercation, charged with using abusive language.

The trouble arose over Webb's refusal to move from in front of the entrance to the Wilson. Webb claims that Wey demanded that he move away from the hotel and then struck him, whereupon the hackman hit back and knocked the hotel man through his own door.

Webb who struck the blow, it was said, followed it with another which caused Wey to smash the window in falling.

After their arrest, both Webb and Miller were released on $15 bail.

Twenty-Five Sheet Metal Workers
Called Out and Three Concerns Are "Unfair."

A report was received at the Federation of Labor meeting last night that the sheet metal workers of the city are in trouble that may result seriously.

Four months ago the employers of sheet metal workers were notified that on Sept. 1 the wages of the workers would have to be advanced 5 cents per hour. All of the bosses met and agreed to meet the demand and grant the increase. All but three of the bosses gave the increase as agreed on Sept. 1, and these held out, with the consequence that there are twenty-five men locked out. The offending companies, according to the union officials, are the Utah Mine & Smelter Supply company, the Salt Lake Hardware company and the Western Heating company.

It was also reported that the Brewery Workers' union had succeeded for the first time in getting their label placed on all beer made in Salt Lake, and that for the first time in the history of organized labor in Salt Lake all imported beers are bearing this label.

It was also reported that all but three of the iron moulders' shops are on the fair list. The three shops designated as unfair are the Salt Lake Engineering works, Silver Brothers' foundry and Davis & Howe.

E. J. Gregory has been appointed a member of the Federation of Labor arbitration committee. He is a member of the local Typographical union.

AMUSEMENTS

"The Education of Mr. Pipp," coupled with a liberal one for several others, went on at the Salt Lake theatre last evening. And it was a good education, too. It left Mr. Pipp quite a finished product, and it did what all education ought to do—inspired every one with a desire for more.

The play built around the cartoons of Charles Gibson is not a thin affair made entirely out of pictures. It is a real life-size drama, filled with all the thrilling situations and the characters that go to make such a play. It is not lacking in a definite plot, nor artistic settings, and as presented by Digby Bell and his company, it is safe to say it pleased better than anything since "The Lion and the Mouse" of last season.

Indeed, so well pleased was the audience that at the end of the second act Mr. Bell was obliged to respond to a vociferous curtain call, when he made a characteristic speech extolling the merits of the system by which the women manage affairs, and expressing appreciation of the manner in which he and his players had been received. His handling of the part is nearly perfect, and his resemblance to the pictured Mr. Pipp is marked. His lines are not lengthy, nor are they heavy in themselves, but he shows admirably what can be done with them. His characteristic sayings repeated by the audience, and the few of them were so catchy as to startle the audience, and the expressive working of his hands when he was in the hands of Mrs. Pipp was something never seen before.

He hardly knows to whom to give second place—Belle Gaffney as Mrs. Pipp or U. S. St. Claire as the Count Charming, the heavy villain of the piece. The former did the best piece of character acting that could possibly be done, her acquired or rather, unacquired, French making bright his all through the play. Her "managing" qualities and her desire for a foreign "nobility person" as a part of her family were not a time overdone. The count was so thoroughly the Frenchman, both in voice and appearance, and withal so clever an actor that he is entitled to a high place in the cast.

The parts taken by the two young daughters, Phyllis Young and Elise Scott, are of little importance, but the young women are important, and both of them. Reginald Masson as the young English nobleman, and Sam B. Hardy as his friend, John Winding, are both excellent. Perhaps the only weak one in the entire cast is the congressman, John Fink, who is in the cast of a stick. But the entire company as a whole is so good that he may well be overlooked.

The play will be seen today both afternoon and evening, and the houses are bound to be good ones.

With today's matinee "The Power of Truth" will receive its initial production at the Lyric theatre, and one of the strongest plays of the season is promised. While the main thread of the plot is of sorrow, there is plenty of comedy, and the play is full of character actors in particular supplying it and these are in the hands of clever actors. An exceptionally large cast, requiring the full strength of the stock company, will be seen, and an enjoyable entertainment is promised.

Today is matinee day at the Grand, and the second day of the new series of vaudeville matinees, which Manager Cox has inaugurated, and which is becoming so popular with the lady patrons of the house. For this afternoon, the management will present each lady with a dainty souvenir. The Claire-Hartman Adele Bradford company will give two performances, "Shadows of Sin" today, which will end their engagement at the Grand.

May Boley and her Polly girls, Jennie Praeger, the toe dancer; Arthur Deming and the other features at the Orpheum this afternoon and evening at the State street vaudeville house. Next week a splendid bill has been booked in anticipation of conference visitors flocking to town.

GARDEN FILLED TO ITS CAPACITY

State Ticket of the Independence League Ratified at Madison Square.

New York, Sept. 28.—The state ticket of the Independence league was ratified at a gathering that filled Madison Square Garden to its capacity tonight. The Municipal Reform alliance joined the league in the meeting.

The principal addresses were delivered by W. R. Hearst and Lewis Stuyvesant Charles Chanler, respectively the candidates for governor and lieutenant governor on both the Democratic and Independence league tickets.

Former Congressman John DeWitt Warner presided and evoked much applause when he declared that there had never before been a time "when the soundscapes of the state were so massed against a party as they are today against that led by William R. Hearst."

Chanler's Speech.

Mr. Chanler spoke briefly, concluding as follows:

"I have always been a Democrat, and in common with the rank and file of that party, it has been a source of infinite sadness to see it being gradually controlled by the same men and bound to the same interests that own and control the Republican party."

"We rejoice tonight that the rank and file of the Democratic party have freed themselves from the control of the corporations, have reasserted their rights and are about to regain their power. We congratulate the Democracy of this state in that they have chosen as their standard bearer Mr. Hearst could make himself drunk."

Ovation for Hearst.

When Mr. Hearst entered the Garden the audience greeted him with deafening cheers, while the band played and flags were waved. It was nearly a half hour before Mr. Hearst could make himself heard. He said in part:

"Before I received the nomination from my party I spoke at Syracuse and stated the principles in which I believed and framed my personal platform. Therefore, the nominations that have been given me were with a full understanding of exactly what I believe."

"I shall make the campaign according to my own conscience and honor, and shall conduct my administration according to my own convictions."

A Jefferson Democrat.

"I am a Jefferson Democrat, and that, as I understand it, is practically the same as a Republican. I have accepted the position in Washington, D. C., and will leave in a few days to assume his new duties. W. H. Barrett, who has up to now held a position with the Oregon Short Line railway, will succeed to the position left vacant by Mr. Smith."

Notice is hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing between Bain & Harms is this day dissolved by mutual consent, Mr. Harms assuming all indebtedness and continuing the business. All accounts due the firm should be paid Mr. Harms.
